

MINDLANCE AGGREGATE SPEND MANAGEMENT

Pharmaceutical, biotech, and medical device manufacturers face a myriad of requirements to disclose spending on healthcare providers and organizations. Complying with varying state requirements presents considerable and costly challenges that require not only proper interpretation of legislation, but the execution of sound systems and processes. Even more significant requirements are likely to arise with the expected passage of the Physician Payment Sunshine Act, which contains rigorous monitoring and reporting obligations to the Department of Health and Human Services.

Organizations need to implement proper policies, procedures and systems to track aggregate spend across many areas of the company, including sales, marketing, R&D, clinical and other segments. Aggregating data requires the integration of multiple internal, disparate systems along with external and third party sources.
